Christian H. Riss is a creative and developer with a deep and long-term (+15 years) experience in managing distributed web development project teams over several locations (Berlin, Munich, and Graz). In this time I have been working for clients across europe and the US, on site and also remote.

As founder and former shareholder of two design and web developement agencies I am used to keep track of our clients success and relationship as well as team harmony; to negotiate with all stakeholders on the scoping and pricing to deliver the best results possible was always essential. As a designer, I am also used to keep a strong eye on detail.
